Dear Datadog,

I am a software development enthusiast with primary focus on building highly reliable and tested software's. Over the past four years, I have worked on variety of tech frameworks and built various test architectures that help in building the reliable products.

As a senior software engineer at Poshmark, I implemented few architectures like external services integration involving Facebook, Twitter, etc. along with a strong test suite framework on Cucumber and RSpec. I brought in more active users and in turn more revenue to the company.

At Tata Consultancy Services, I worked on building enterprise iOS apps and created a test framework for the same which helped the team to test their own built functionality.

Currently, I am in pursuit of new skillset in Cybersecurity, which I have a little experience of and would like to combine my knowledge from the past and advance in this field. I am pursuing masters in Cybersecurity to learn and grow in this domain.

Sincerely,

Syed Mohammad Ibrahim
